With cyber threats increasing in scale and sophistication, Daniel continues to play an important role in reinforcing Hong Kong’s broader cyber resilience. Beyond strengthening HGC’s defensive posture, he actively engages with industry partners, associations and public bodies to elevate governance standards and encourage threat intelligence sharing across the ecosystem. HGC further advanced its trust and compliance capabilities by attaining SOC 2 Type II certification, reflecting the Group’s ongoing commitment to robust security and operational excellence.

This year’s Cyber Security Professional Awards placed strong emphasis on the expertise of its judging panel, which plays a pivotal role in ensuring the credibility and integrity of the evaluation process. Among them was HGC’s Chief Executive Officer, Andrew Kwok, who served as one of judge for the 2025 awards. His participation reflects the strong standing of HGC within the telecommunications and ICT community and the Group’s continued commitment to supporting industry development and best practice standards.

Andrew Kwok, Chief Executive Officer of HGC, said, “Daniel’s achievement this year reflects the professionalism and innovation essential in today’s cybersecurity landscape. His work not only contributes to raising industry standards but also strengthens HGC’s commitment to delivering robust and future-ready cyber-security capabilities for businesses and communities.”

Daniel Ho, Vice President, Unified Cyber Security and Digital Transformation Solutions of HGC, said “It is a tremendous honour to receive the award again at the ‘Cyber Security Professional Awards.’ This recognition reflects not only my personal dedication but also the trust and support from HGC, which continues to invest in cybersecurity talent, technology, and innovation. I am deeply grateful to my team for their relentless efforts and to the Group for empowering us to deliver advanced protection solutions to clients across sectors. This award motivates me to continue contributing to the cybersecurity community and driving impactful initiatives that strengthen Hong Kong’s cyber resilience.”

The “Cyber Security Professional Awards,” established in 2016, recognises outstanding cybersecurity professionals across multiple industries and promotes knowledge-sharing, innovation, and corporate commitment to cyber resiliency. This year, awards were presented across eight sectors, including Banking and Finance, Telecommunications Services, Cyber Security Educations & Training, Government Departments and Public Bodies, Internet and Cloud Services, Cyber Security Startups & SMEs, Cyber Security Audit & Consulting, and Transportation & Public Utilities.
