

HGC launches free “Mobile Video Conferencing Solution” to help businesses in the fight against the coronavirus outbreak Offering HGC UC Mobile Video Conferencing Service for free for 3 months to existing customers*

Hong Kong, 5 February 2020 – HGC Global Communications Limited (HGC) today announced that as the Wuhan coronavirus continues to spread, it has launched a free "Mobile Video Conferencing Solution" to allow companies to assist their employees to work from home and reduce the operational impact of the coronavirus, as well as the risk of it spreading through the community.

HGC is now offering HGC UC (Unified Communications) Mobile Video Conferencing Service for free for 3 months* to existing customers to help SME customers stay connected with employees and business partners without disruption. Businesses can conduct video conferences through the HGC UC mobile app to stay in close contact with their customers, business partners and staff, and to run their businesses as usual.

HGC UC unified communication solution integrates business voice and mobile communication services. Its mobile video conferencing service allows users to set up an online platform with a designated phone number, allowing participants to conduct video conferences and share screens in real-time. The flexible communication mode also enables businesses to maintain continuity of operation regardless of location.

Mr. Joe Cheong, Chief Operating Officer, Corporate Business & Enterprise Market of HGC said, “The Group hopes to help contribute to society during the current virus outbreak, and to encourage people from the industry to work together in this difficult period. With this customer-oriented solution, we hope to assist businesses in maintaining daily operations despite the difficult circumstances. ”
